

82A-023 Furgang Farm
10700 Furhang Road
Cheltenham

Built in 1897, the Furgang farmhouse is a two-and-one-half-story, T-shaped house with a bracketed porch, projecting bay and pedimented gables ornamented with fish-scale shingles. It stands in a complex of domestic and farm outbuildings. The house was built for Morris Furgang, an engineer for the Baltimore and Potomac Railroad, in a location very close to the tracks. The house was rehabilitated in 2007.
