Aquasco

Built circa 1830 and extensively renovated in 1941, Green Hill, also known as Poplar Hill, is a two-part frame dwelling that consists of a two-story, side-gabled main block with an attached one-story gabled wing. The house at Green Hill was built in the 1830s by George W. Marriott, whose family held the property until 1864. Originally representative of antebellum farm dwellings, Green Hill was extensively renovated so that it now retains little of its nineteenth-century appearance. It is a prominent local landmark, however, as was the early tobacco barn that stood on the same property until recently.
