

This map illustrates the geographical context of the Washington, D.C. area, focusing on the Chesapeake Bay and the surrounding states of Maryland and Virginia. The District of Columbia is highlighted in yellow, showing its location relative to the surrounding states. The Chesapeake Bay is depicted in blue, showing its extensive network of waterways and islands. The map includes labels for various counties and cities, such as Washington, Baltimore, and Annapolis. A legend in the bottom right corner identifies the yellow area as the 'District of Columbia' and the blue area as the 'Chesapeake Bay'.